Handfast Point

Old Harry and the Foreland are part of Handfast Point, the most easterly part of the Jurassic Coastline. The vertical chalk cliffs extend about a mile south-westward, ranging in height from about 70ft at Old Harry to 380ft at Ballard Point.

Wind and wave action form caves and arches which eventually collapse and form the scalloped outlines and stacks which are a feature of this section of coastline.

Old Harry is a traditional name for the Devil, and the theme is continued on the section of cliff top leading to Old Harry which is known as Old Nick's Ground. Reputedly the ashes of the author HG Wells were scattered in the sea at the base of Old Harry.

The Needles off the Isle of Wight were originally part of the same chalk formation
